HAPPY NEW YEAR!

OUR JANUARY OUTING WAS COLD

Our outing was at Lake Park in Georgia's deep south where hospitality was at its finest. The Sta-Goners again did a fantastic job as hosts. The Simpsons greeted some of us as we registered and were the last to say "good-bye."

StuLynn and Jim Simpson were there every step of the way keeping us on track.

Thursday evening was kicked off with heavy hors d'oeuvres and no one was anxious for dinner. After a lot of laughter and games, including Chase the Ace, some went to McDonald's for a late evening hot fudge sundae.

Friday we were on our own until we caravanned to Lake Dog for a tasty Low Country Boil. The restaurant was closed except for our group. Afterwards, more games at the Club House.

Saturday morning started with a hot breakfast. Business meetings followed with lunch and afternoon free. Saturday evening we enjoyed a catered meal. The entertainment was a lively band "Just in Case" from Live Oak, FL. They entertained us for three hours with good country music and singing.

Lake Park KOA treated us with a continental breakfast Sunday morning and then we said our good-byes.

THOUGHT FOR THE NEW YEAR

The New Year lies before you like a spotless track of snow. Be careful how you tread it, for every track will show.

ANOTHER SPECIAL PLACE NORTH CAROLINA'S OUTER BANKS

By Theda Chambliss

You know Jesse and I dearly love museums, but lighthouses are running a close second. Last summer we decided Alaska was out because of high gas prices, so we decided to vacation nearer home. It was a fun, memorable vacation. A photographer's paradise.

We left Cedar Island by ferry headed for the Outer Banks. Our first stop was Ocracoke, home of Donald Davis, one of the foremost storytellers of our time. Ocracoke's past is linked strongly to the ocean, as is shown by their beautiful, white lighthouse.

Ocracoke Lighthouse

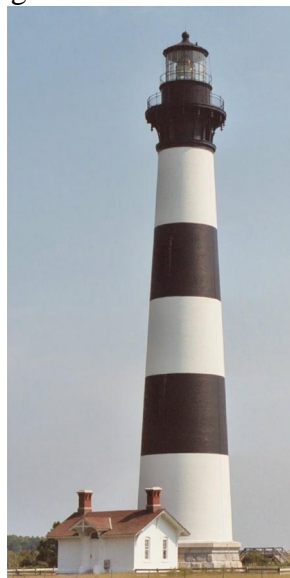

Another smaller ferry took us up the island to Cape Hatteras. The Cape Hatteras Lighthouse is the tallest brick lighthouse in the world, standing 198 feet tall. It was built to help ships navigate around Diamond Shoals off Cape Hatteras.

Cape Hatteras Lighthouse

The Brodie Island Lighthouse was constructed in 1872. It's beacon, originally fueled by oil, was electrified in 1932. A Fresnel lens made of cut glass prisms magnifies the light. Flocks of geese crashing into the lens was a major problem. The first Brodie Island Lighthouse was built in 1847; the second in 1859; and the present one was completed in 1872. The original name was "Body's Island," as the area is known as the "Graveyard of the Atlantic" because of formidable currents, fierce storms, and shifting shoals.

The Carrituck Beach Lighthouse is the northernmost lighthouse on the Outer Banks. It was completed in 1875, is 162 feet tall and has 214 steps. Its light can be seen for 19 miles. When the lighthouse was illuminated in 1875, it completed the chain of lights along the North Carolina coast by filling in a previously dark 80-mile gap. This red brick structure has never been painted in order to distinguish it in daylight from Brodie, Ocracoke and Hatteras lighthouses.

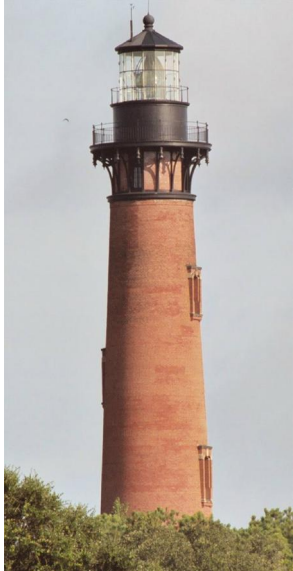

Brodie Island Lighthouse

Kitty Hawk lies midway between Brodie Island Lighthouse and Carrituck Island Lighthouse. On December 17, 1903, Orville and Wilbur Wright changed the course of history. Their power-driven, heavier-than-air machine lifted off the ground and stayed airborne for twelve seconds.

This was quite a departure from their bicycle shop back in Dayton, Ohio.

In addition to the airstrip and museum, these pioneers of flight are remembered through a large granite marker and a life-size sculpture depicting their first flight.

As we lift off from the Atlanta Hartsfield Airport in a huge airliner, we never think of these humble beginnings and the two men that devoted their life to make this type travel available to us.
